It would be an excellent idea if every orthodox church would organize a branch club of the "Don't Knock Society" for its members, says Ella Wheeler Wilcox. Here are some quotations from the club book:

We believe that each individual who conscientiously follows the doctrine of the Order of Don't Knock will be led to all other things which constitute a perfect life.

We believe that the practice of speaking ill of our fellow men, otherwise "knocking," is detestable, unbrotherly and uncharitable.

We believe it our duty to conceal the imperfections of our fellows (provided their actions are not of great menace to the welfare of community) and do all we can by precept and example to show them where they err.

We believe that many lives are ruined daily, that many hearts are made miserable, and many men and women driven to desperation by the despicable practice of "knocking."

We believe that many people judge others by their own standard and that because they are not tempted or are able to resist doing some particular thing they consider wrong, they feel themselves warranted in despising and criticizing those who are weaker than themselves or whose opinions differ with their own.

We believe that many people arrogate to themselves the fact that they are better than others. And we believe this to be foolishly egotistical, and that they should give credit to the proper source for any virtues they may possess.

Col Jack Chinn was introduced to President Roosevelt last week, and the papers say the two chatted and laughed for some time. Col Chinn told the President that he was a "Bryan Roosevelt Democrat," which statement amused Mr Roosevelt very much. Wonder if Col Chinn told him of the fine fox hunting here in Garrard? We venture to say he gave the name of every dog the Walker boys own.

Members of the Chicago Musicians Union who play in restaurants are demanding two dollars more a week on the ground that they will soon be called upon to play Wagnerian music. The proprietors had better save the two dollars, and at the same time have music consistent with restaurant feed by sticking to "Bill Bailey," "Bedelia," and other little Sunday school songs.

The ball at Mr Roosevelt's inauguration will be the "swellest" ever given on similar occasions, and much is being printed as to preparations. The President will be there, but will not hit a lick. We will venture the assertion that he would much prefer to witness an old-fashioned country hoe-down, and if the fiddler was a good one, Mr R. would shake his brogans through one "set," at least.

Major Carrington, of the U. S. army in the Philippines, has been sentenced to prison for sixty years and five days for falsifying vouchers. The five days will be about all the time the Major will serve, as he has a good strong "pull," and that will keep any man out of jail in these hustling times.

A Baltimore doctor says a man can do but little after he reaches the age of forty. As he hasn't as much sense as a fieldark until he reaches the age of thirty-five, his days of usefulness are few, indeed, according to the Boston pill giver's way of figuring.

A man has been found in Mississippi who has no brains at all, an accident having robbed him of his corrugated matter. In appearance and action, the man is all right. He will doubtless be given a chair in some big college.

An Iowa girl went through college in boy's clothes, mistaken throughout the four years of her course as a shy, mild mannered youth. It goes without saying that she never joined any of the college fraternities.

A college president declares that freshmen know more than they formerly did. As a freshman knows more at his age than anyone else, old or young, his stock of knowledge must be unmeasurable.

Every few days some noted doctor comes to the front with a "discovery." The latest tomfoolery along this line is from an English physician who says that excessive drinking of water causes appendicitis.

"The price of a man," was the subject discussed by a Louisville preacher last week. In a hot election, along late in the day, we have seen them bring a pretty good figure.

A Philadelphia special says a Philadelphia girl is being entertained by an emperor. If she were a Kentucky girl, it would be the emperor who was being entertained.

A fashion paper says ball gowns are lower in the back this year than last. This being the case, a quarter of a yard of goods will make a ball dress.

The labor organizations should be particular to learn that Mrs Roosevelt's inauguration-ball gown is union-made.
